

Abstract of the Disclosure

An assay device for detecting amines within a test sample (e.g., vaginal fluid) is provided. The assay device comprises a detection zone within which a chemichromic dye is contained. The chemichromic dye is capable of undergoing a color change upon exposure to one or more amines within the test sample.